For Immediate Release
February 2, 2007

KIM WADAS IS NEW ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR
FOR EDUCATION AND HEALTH CARE POLICY

The Wisconsin Catholic Conference has announced the appointment of Kim Wadas of Madison, Wisconsin as Associate Director for Education and Social Concerns. Wadas began her duties February 1.

Kim earned a law degree from the University of Iowa in 2002 and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and History from Marquette University. While at Marquette, she was an Ignatius Scholar and a participant in the Les Aspin Center for Government’s Washington Internship Program. In that capacity she spent nine months as a Congressional Intern for Republican Congressman Douglas Bereuter.

“Kim combines a firm grasp of Catholic teaching with the ability to articulate it well in the pluralistic political environment in which we must operate,” explained WCC Executive Director John Huebscher. “Her legal background is an asset in engaging the legal and regulatory issues that surface in issues affecting schools and health care.”

“The Wisconsin Catholic Conference is dedicated to serving the interests of Catholics statewide,” Wadas said. “I welcome the opportunity to represent the Church’s interests and to enhance the role our faith plays in maintaining a just and charitable society.”

Wadas is a member of Our Lady Queen of Peace Parish in Madison where she has been part of the Bread for the Mound program and active in a ministry to provide toys to the children of imprisoned parents. She also participates in the parish’s partnership with a sister parish in Chiapas, Mexico.

For more information, contact John Huebscher at 608-257-0004.